NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY: AN AMERICAN STORY

Directed by Dianne Fukami
Produced by Dianne Fukami & Debra Nakatomi

TRT: 56:00 MINUTES IN ENGLISH

PRESS CONTACT:
Cara White (cara.white@mac.com)
843-881-1480
Mary Lugo (lugo@negia.net)

WWW.MINETALEGACYPROJECT.COM
NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY: AN AMERICAN STORY

SYNOPSIS

SHORT SYNOPSIS

Norman Mineta's story follows his experience as a Japanese American inside a U.S. concentration camp to his rise to prominence making him one of the most influential Asian Americans in U.S. history. A bipartisan visionary who championed political civility, he is a change maker whose legacy includes a lifelong commitment to social justice.

LONG SYNOPSIS

An American Story: Norman Mineta and His Legacy is a film about injustice, redemption, and a burning desire for all people to be treated equally.

The child of immigrants, Norman Mineta's uniquely American story charts a path from the shame he experienced as a Japanese American inside a U.S. concentration camp during World War II to his triumphant rise to political prominence that shaped every level of government, and made him one of the most influential Asian Americans in the history of our nation. His distinguished career is an unmatched slate of achievements, including 20 years in the United States Congress and eventually serving in the Cabinets of two Presidents from different political parties—Bill Clinton and George W. Bush. Still thriving today in his 80s, he is celebrated as a bipartisan visionary who championed political civility yet was a bold change maker with a deft political touch whose legacy includes a lifelong commitment to social justice.
NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY: AN AMERICAN STORY

IMAGES & VIDEOS

Images and videos are available upon request. Please email Cara White (cara.white@mac.com) or Mary Lugo (lugo@negia.net).

Description of Still Images:

1. Norman Mineta’s parents: Kane Watanabe Mineta (on the left) and Kunisaku Mineta in 1914, Courtesy Mineta Family

2. Norman and Deni Mineta at the 2016 Northern California Cherry Blossom Parade when he was Grand Marshal, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

3. Heart Mountain Relocation Center circa 1942-1945, Courtesy National Archives and Records Administration

4. Former U.S. Senator Alan Simpson (R-WY) with boyhood friend Norman Mineta at the 2015 Heart Mountain Annual Pilgrimage, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

5. Former President George W. Bush interviewed in Dallas, TX at the Bush Presidential Library, September 2017, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

6. Former President Bill Clinton interviewed in New York at the Clinton Foundation, June 2017, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

7. Danealia “Deni” Mineta and Norman Y. Mineta after he was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, December 2006, Courtesy Mineta Family

8. Norman Y. Mineta, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

9. Mineta family members and friends at Heart Mountain Relocation Center during World War II. Norman is in front row in the white shirt. Courtesy Mineta Family

10. Danealia “Deni” and Norman Mineta, 2016, Courtesy Mineta Family

11. Heart Mountain, 2015, Courtesy Mineta Legacy Project

Description of Video Clips:

1. HR 442 and Righting Wrongs – TRT: 2:24

2. Heart Mountain Relocation Center – TRT: 2:40
   Archival footage and photos of Heart Mountain Relocation Center where the Mineta family was incarcerated during World War II; Mineta’s memories of Heart Mountain during a 2013 trip there; still photos of Japanese Americans imprisoned in other concentration camps
3. Secretary Norman Y. Mineta and President George W. Bush – TRT: 3:00
   Former President George W. Bush on reasons for selecting Mineta, a Democrat, as Secretary of Transportation; Mineta’s perspective on political civility and bipartisanship; Mineta and Bush reminisce about personal conversation about Japanese American incarceration experience; Bush on impact of Mineta’s Cabinet presence in forming 9/11 domestic policies.

4. Secretary Norman Y. Mineta and Senator Alan Simpson – TRT: 2:39
   Mineta and former U.S. Senator Alan Simpson from Wyoming reminisce about meeting during World War II as 11-year old Boy Scouts when Simpson’s troop visited the Japanese Americans imprisoned at Heart Mountain Relocation Center, resulting in a lifelong friendship in spite of differing political philosophies.
Norman Y. Mineta is a man of many firsts: the first Asian American mayor of a major city; the first Japanese American from the mainland to be elected to Congress; and, the first Asian American to serve in a presidential cabinet.

But beyond these groundbreaking achievements, he personifies our dreams and aspirations. Norm is the son of immigrants forcibly removed from his home with his family to spend years in an internment camp during World War II. And yet, he remains a patriot, has led with integrity achieving a long and storied career as a public servant and continues to champion the underserved and mentor young leaders.

Mineta’s career in public service has been both distinguished and unique. For almost 30 years, Mineta represented San Jose, California, first on the City Council, then as mayor and serving 21 years as a Member of Congress. Mineta served as chairman of the U.S. House Committee on Public Works and Transportation from 1992 to 1994, and chaired the Subcommittees on Aviation and Surface Transportation. He was the primary author of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991.

Throughout that time, Mineta was an advocate of the burgeoning technology industry. He worked to encourage new industries, spur job growth, and supported the development of the infrastructure needed to accommodate the technology industry and its tremendous growth.

In 2000, President Bill Clinton appointed Mineta Secretary of Commerce. There, Mineta was known for his work on technology issues, bridging the digital divide, achieving international and intergovernmental cooperation on complex fisheries issues, and for streamlining the patent and trademark process.

President George W. Bush appointed Mineta Secretary of Transportation, where he served until 2006. Following the horrific terrorist acts of September 11, 2001, Mineta grounded all aviation flights and then guided the creation of the Transportation Security Administration—an agency with more than 65,000 employees—marking the largest mobilization of a new federal agency since World War II.

He is well known for his work in the areas of transportation—including aviation, surface transportation and infrastructure—and national security. He is recognized for his accomplishments in economic development, science and technology policy, foreign and domestic trade, budgetary issues and civil rights.

Mineta was also a vice president of Lockheed Martin, where he oversaw the first successful implementation of the EZ-Pass system in New York State. Today, Mineta is the President and CEO of Mineta and Associates, LLC.

Recognized for his leadership, Mineta has received numerous awards, including the Presidential Medal of Freedom—the highest civilian honor in the United States—and the Wright Brothers Memorial Trophy, which is awarded for significant public service of enduring value to aviation in the United States. In February 2016, he was named a Chubb Fellow at Yale University. While in Congress, he was the co-founder of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus and chair of the National Civil Aviation Review Commission in 1997.
He is married to Danealia (Deni) Mineta and has two sons, David K. Mineta and Stuart S. Mineta and two stepsons, Robert M. Brantner and Mark D. Brantner.
NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY: AN AMERICAN STORY
PRODUCTION CREW BIOGRAPHIES

Lawrence R. Hott, Executive Producer
Hott has been producing documentary films since 1978, when he left the practice of law to join Florentine Films. His awards include an Emmy, two Academy Award nominations, a George Foster Peabody Award, the Alfred I. duPont-Columbia Journalism Award, the Erik Barnouw OAH History Award, five American Film Festival Blue Ribbons, fourteen CINE Golden Eagles, screenings at Telluride, and first-place awards from the San Francisco, Chicago, National Educational, and New England Film Festivals. He has produced and directed two dozen films for national PBS broadcast.

Dianne Fukami, Director/Co-Producer
Fukami has produced, directed, and written more than a half-dozen documentaries on the Asian American experience (mostly on Japanese-American history) which have been broadcast on PBS stations across the country. Separate Lives, Broken Dreams, about the Chinese Exclusion Act, was nominated for a national Emmy Award; Starting Over: Japanese Americans After the War has received many scholarly citations for its first-person anecdotes. Her most recent documentary, Stories From Tohoku, was showcased at CAAMFest in 2014 (formerly the San Francisco Asian International Film Festival) and screened at film festivals in New York and Los Angeles.

Debra Nakatomi, Co-Producer
Nakatomi is founder of a strategic communications firm that for over 25 years has developed communications and civic engagement campaigns promoting equity and social change. She is an advisor to executives and mission-driven organizations on communications and culture change. Nakatomi’s documentary career began with the co-production of Stories From Tohoku, with Dianne Fukami in 2014, a film about the survivors of Japan’s 2011 earthquake, tsunami, and nuclear disaster. The film aired on public television stations and screened throughout the U.S. and Japan.

Ken Chowder, Writer
Chowder has scripted over 30 documentary films broadcast on PBS, NBC, TBS, Discovery, AE, and BBC, and published three acclaimed novels with Harper/Collins. His films have been nominated for the Academy Award for Best Documentary, won the Primetime Emmy, duPont-Columbia Award, Peabody Award, and Erik Barnouw History Award, and been Best Documentary at many festivals, including the American Film Festival. Credits include 7 films for PBS’ The American Experience, an American Masters, and 7 National Geographic films. His articles have appeared in Smithsonian, Audubon, American Heritage, and more. He's been writer or co-writer for over a dozen NEH-sponsored films that have garnered awards, acclaim, and wide distribution nationally and internationally.

Robin Mortarotti, Director of Photography
Mortarotti is an award-winning filmmaker with over thirty-five years of experience as producer and director of photography on feature, documentary, commercial, and promotional films. Robin has been the recipient of numerous national and international awards, including C.I.N.E. Golden Eagle, the Council of International Non-theatrical Events, the U.S. Industrial Film Festival, Columbia/DuPont and Sigma Delta Chi awards, as well as a local daytime Emmy, an Academy Award nomination for “Enrique’s Story” and numerous awards from Eastman Kodak Company.

Hailey Yang, Editor
Yang was a news editor for Link Media in San Francisco, California and worked on “LinkAsia”, a weekly half-hour show about Asia. She was a documentary editor for Kia motors and commercial video editor for Clarins, Simpatico Homes and Laneige.
Derek Nakamoto, Composer
Nakamoto is a veteran producer and composer with a 30-year career of producing and arranging for some of the most influential music artists. He has composed original music recorded by some of the world’s most prestigious ensembles. His extensive musical background has allowed him to work on a variety of eclectic projects. From string arrangements for Grammy winning artists and production credits to full orchestra scores, Nakamoto forges textures and harmonies from different cultures and eras into a unique piece that is sure to move the audience.

Amy Watanabe, Associate Producer
Watanabe is an Account Executive at Nakatomi & Associates. Her previous experience focused on civil rights and advocacy work and developing the political pipeline and leadership for Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders both locally and nationally. Amy received her bachelor’s degree in Communication Studies and minor in Asian American Studies from the University of California, Los Angeles.

Camille Obata, Production Assistant
Obata graduated from the University of California, Riverside with a bachelor’s degree in Media and Cultural Studies and a minor in Sociology. This is the first documentary she has worked on. It was both her interest in understanding the ways in which media influences culture, and vice versa, along with her experiences as a Yonsei (fourth generation Japanese American) that has brought her on board the Mineta Legacy Project.
NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY: AN AMERICAN STORY

DIRECTOR’S STATEMENT

Norman Y. Mineta was an icon in the San Francisco Bay Area where I grew up. After producing and directing several documentaries about the Japanese American experience, I knew that Norm’s story best symbolizes what so many second-generation Japanese Americans (Nisei) had endured: the shame of incarceration during World War II, the family struggle to reclaim lives, and the road to success and acceptance.

Ironically, major themes in Norm’s life are relevant today: anti-immigration sentiment, racism and prejudice, mass detention, violation of civil liberties and constitutional rights, political civility and bipartisanship, and civic engagement. And personal integrity. In making this film, co-producer Debra Nakatomi and I wanted to focus the spotlight on Norm and inspire people by telling the story of his groundbreaking accomplishments, respect for his Japanese heritage, and love for his country.

--Dianne Fukami, April 2019
1. How did this film come about? How did you get into filmmaking? How did this particular idea originate?

Secretary Mineta is an icon in the Asian American and Japanese American community. For more than five decades, he has been a real trailblazer with accomplishments in public service and elected office, all while retaining his stellar reputation as a man of integrity who is easily accessible and never forgets a name or face. As an American of Japanese ancestry, he faced legal discrimination of the worst kind when he and his family were incarcerated during World War II along with 120,000 people of Japanese descent. How could we tell his story in a way that would inspire others? That was the genesis of the film.

After nearly 15 years working in a local television newsroom, I became involved in documentary filmmaking in 1993 with my involvement in the TV documentary “Separate Lives, Broken Dreams” about the Chinese Exclusion Act.

2. Why did you make this film? What inspired you?

Secretary Mineta’s story needed to be told but even more urgently so after the 2016 presidential election. Co-producer Debra Nakatomi and I realized that it was important to raise the visibility of a man who had been subjected to civil liberties violations as a child and who later spent more than 50 years in public service, including appointments in the presidential cabinets of a Democrat and Republican. There is an urgency to remind the American public that there are people who serve our government with integrity, practice civility, and believe in bipartisanship. As the son of immigrants combined with his own experiences during World War II, Mineta’s story is also a cautionary tale about what can happen when polarization and xenophobia are promoted as domestic policies.

3. How long did it take to make the film, from concept to finish?

I had been trying to persuade Secretary Mineta to cooperate in a biographical documentary for nearly a decade but his modesty and self-effacing manner were obstacles. Whenever I saw him at community and social events I would approach him with the query, “Norm, when are you going to let me make that documentary about you?” And he would reply “Aw, I’m just a regular Joe; no one is interested in my story.” Expecting the usual repartee, I approached him in November 2013 and was dumbfounded when he said instead, “Let’s talk.” After a long discussion with him and his wife Deni, Debra Nakatomi and I began actively fundraising in 2014 and working on the documentary. It has taken more than four years.

4. Share a story about filming; anything that you found interesting along the way with your filming journey.

We were able to video a number of extended interviews with Secretary Mineta. During one of our final interviews, I asked him a question about the American flag pin he always wears on his lapel, anticipating a response about patriotism. Instead he answered that he wears the flag pin because there are times he still feels like a foreigner in his own country, especially when strangers see him and have a questioning look. But when they see his flag pin, they know he’s an American citizen. As he is telling this to me on camera, I have tears streaming down my face. I couldn’t believe that a man who has given more than 50 years of his life in public service as mayor, Congressman, and a member of two presidential cabinets, still felt the need to wear an American flag pin as a defense mechanism against people who see his Asian American face and silently question his country of origin. As third generation Americans of Japanese ancestry, both Debra and I were deeply touched by this and were reminded of our personal experiences receiving praise from strangers on our ability to speak English fluently or their insistence on asking where we are “really” from instead of accepting that we are from California and that our parents were as well. It is a reminder that for people of color in the U.S., no matter how assimilated one has become or what one has accomplished, that we still are not seen and accepted as Americans.

5. Did the film change from your original idea for the film as you were filming or in post?

What makes this documentary film unique is the concept of the Mineta Legacy Project. The film is one component of the Mineta Legacy Project. The other important component is the free online educational curriculum that is being developed concurrently by the Stanford Program for International Cross-Cultural Education (SPICE) which will ensure that Norman Mineta’s story and contributions will have an even longer life than the film. Whereas in many cases, a curriculum is a byproduct of the film, in our case, we have been creating independent videos for the curriculum that will never be a part of the film. An example is filming a roundtable discussion with high school students who talk about their own present-day experiences with discrimination, social activism, and leadership. SPICE’s Dr. Gary Mukai and Rylan Sekiguchi have created an exciting modular-based curriculum for high school and university educators that uses Mineta’s life and experiences as a touchpoint to educate students about themes that include immigration, civic engagement, leadership, U.S.-Japan relations, and justice and reconciliation.

6. What were the challenges in making this film?

Initially we had trouble getting funding. Traditional grantmakers were not interested and our NEH panel felt that a documentary film about Norman Mineta would not be “sexy” enough. Then two things happened which dramatically changed the fundraising landscaping for us: Donald Trump was elected president in 2016 and Dr. Paul and Hisako Terasaki and Sachiko Kuno made significant contributions to our fundraising effort. Suddenly others realized that this project was going to happen, creating momentum and growing interest.

The other challenge is that Secretary Mineta had back surgery during our filming schedule and a number of shoots had to be changed during his recovery.

7. What were the successes that you had in making this film?

We were able to interview both former Presidents George W. Bush and Bill Clinton for the film. It took tenacity and more than two years of effort to schedule these, since they are both so busy. Although our time with them was short, both presidents gave us wonderful interviews and it was clear they both have tremendous respect for Secretary Mineta.

8. What do you want audiences to take away from this film?

Norman Mineta’s story is a real-life version of the American Dream. The son of immigrants, he and his family are incarcerated during World War II, and not only survive, but thrive. Mineta became a national leader while retaining his integrity and honor and never lost his humility. We hope that our audiences see his story and think “I want to get involved. I want to make a difference. I can do that.”
9. Was there a something special technically that you utilized in making this film - your cameras or sound or editing etc... and why were these important.

   Our Director of Photography is Robin Mortarotti, a dedicated artist who has more notes in his binder than we do. His eye for detail resulted in artistry at the Heart Mountain, Wyoming Relocation Center, the internment camp where Mineta and his family were held. There, he shot some scenes in black and white and helped set the tone for that bleak period in U.S. history.

10. Where do you find inspiration or who/what has influenced you as a filmmaker?

   I look back at the films by Loni Ding, Felicia Lowe, Bob Nakamura, and Steven Okazaki who took our community stories and made them live on the screen so that they became part of the fabric of American history and educated people. Their determination and vision set the bar for what good storytelling and filmmaking should be.

11. Anything else you want to add about the making of the film and it’s importance?

   We began this film with Secretary Mineta’s blessing in 2014, we knew his story was compelling and would resonate with a broad audience but couldn’t have anticipated the shift that would occur following the 2016 election, upending our political environment and challenging the very principles and issues that Norm has committed his career and life to.

   Now, more than ever, his life story resonates deeply with America’s core values. We’ve received scores of comments that this project is more urgent than ever and that his story is a timely reminder of our rights guaranteed by our Constitution and responsibilities we all share to guarding and protecting the values of equity, fairness and inclusion.
Stories From Tohoku, 2013, Co-Director/Co-Producer, 2013

Props, 2007 and 2008. Senior producer/director/writer

Spirit of Taiko, 2007. Director/Co-Producer

Art of the Athlete, 2006. Field Producer/Writer

Pacific Fusion, 2004-2005. Executive Producer/Director/Producer

Piecing Memories, 2000. Producer/Director

Heart Mountain, 1997. Consulting producer

Starting Over: Japanese Americans After The War, 1996. Producer/Director

Tanforan: Race Track To Assembly Center, 1995. Producer/Director

Chrysanthemums and Salt, 1994. Producer/Director

AN AMERICAN STORY: NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY

TIMELINE/MILESTONES

- Born: November 12, 1931 (86 years old), San Jose, CA
- Spouse: Danealia “Deni” Brantner Mineta
- Children: David & Stuart Mineta; Bob & Mark Brantner

San Jose Connection
- Born and raised in San Jose (except WWII incarceration)
- Graduated from San Jose High School (elected Student Body President)
- San Jose City Councilmember 1967-1971
- Mayor of San Jose 1971-1975
- Member of Congress from 13th/15th District from 1975-1995

World War II Incarceration
- Mineta family forcibly removed from San Jose home to Santa Anita Racetrack
- 1942 - Heart Mountain Relocation Center, Wyoming

Education: UC Berkeley, B.A. in 1953 from School of Business Administration

Military Service: U.S. Army in the Military Intelligence Corps, 1953-1956

Congressional Highlights
- Sponsored Civil Liberties Act of 1988, which granted reparations and redress to Japanese Americans incarcerated during World War II
- Sponsored Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA), which shifted federal transportation policy and funding from highway construction-based to intermodal, 1991
- Co-author of Americans with Disabilities Act, 1991
- Co-founded Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus (CAPAC), 1994
- Sponsored or co-sponsored a total of 479 bills during 21 years in Congress

Presidential Cabinet Member
- Secretary of Commerce under President Bill Clinton, 2000-2001
- Secretary of Transportation under President George W. Bush, 2001-2006

Other
- First Asian American mayor of a major U.S. city
- First Asian American member of Congress from the mainland
- First Asian American member of a presidential cabinet
- Norman Y. Mineta San Jose International Airport named in 2002
- Awarded Presidential Medal of Freedom (highest civilian honor) by President George W. Bush in 2006
AN AMERICAN STORY: NORMAN MINETA AND HIS LEGACY

FULL CREDIT ROLL

DIRECTOR/PRODUCER
Dianne Fukami

PRODUCER
Debra Nakatomi

WRITER
Ken Chowder

EXECUTIVE PRODUCER
Lawrence R. Hott

NARRATOR
Wendy Tokuda

DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY
Robin Mortarotti

EDITOR
Hailey Yang

ASSOCIATE PRODUCER
Amy Watanabe

CONSULTING PRODUCER
Marc Smolowitz

COMPOSER
Derek Nakamoto

SOUND DESIGN & MIX
Philip Perkins

AUDIO
Philip Perkins
Hilary Stewart

MUSIC SCORE MIX
Glenn Suravech

ADDITIONAL CAMERA
Todd Burger
Steve Cohen
Kevin Jones
Andy Kuester
Zane Miyamoto
Allan Palmer
Jayme Roy
Brian Walker
Max Warren
James Wu

ADDITIONAL AUDIO
Steven Dung
James Lindsey
David Wendlinger

GRIP
Daniel Anchetta
Todd Burger
Gemma Doll-Grossman

PRODUCTION ASSISTANT
Camille Obata
David Dung
Elyse Mueller
Lindsay Nakano
Lisa Peterson Hampshire

PUBLICISTS
13th Gen
DSF Communications
David Magdael & Associates

EDIT SUPPORT
Steven Dung

COLORIST
Gary Coates

GRAPHIC DESIGN
Judy Lichtman

WEB TEAM
Jeff Goodhart
Kyle Miyamoto
John Nyboer
PinkTop Design

TRANSCRIPTIONS
Debbie Alcantara
Kate Goldsworthy
Koji Sato

ARCHIVIST
Anastasia M. Walsh

RESEARCHER
Eugenia A. Hannon

ARCHIVAL IMAGES & VIDEO
ABCNews VideoSource
Acme Newsprints
Alamy Stock Photo
Michele and Tom Grimm mark reinstein
AP Photo
Ira W. Guldner
Ken Lambert
American Heritage Center, University of Wyoming
Alan K. Simpson Papers
Angel Island Immigration Station Foundation
Architect of the Capitol
Asian Pacific American Institute for Congressional Studies (APAICS)
Axiom Images
Barack Obama Presidential Library
Buffalo Bill Center of the West, Cody WY
C-SPAN
California State Parks, Photographic Archives, Angel Is. State Park collection
Clifton Coleman
Collection from Members of Wesley United Methodist Church
Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives
Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians/Los Angeles ©1981
Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus (CAPAC)
CriticalPast
Kobby Dagan
Democratic National Committee
Joe Ellickson
Robert J. Fisch
Michael Foran
Fresno Bee
Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum
Curt Fukuda
George W. Bush Presidential Library
Getty Images
Anadolu Agency
Ann Johansson
Asahi Shimbun
Bettmann
Bloomberg
Carl Mydans
CQ Archive
Fotosearch
Library of Congress
Mark Wilson
Michael Smith
New York Daily News Archive
Ramin Talaie
Saul Loeb
Stan Honda
Heart Mountain Wyoming Foundation, Yoshio Okumoto Collection
History San José
Ronald K. Ikenji
Internment Archives
Japanese American National Museum
Dave Tatsuno Home Movie
Gift of Norman Y. Mineta
Gift of the Yamamoto Family
Gift of Yutaka Shinohara
Lloyd Evans Home Movie
Masao Akiyama Home Movie
Naokichi Hashizume Home Movie
Rev. Sensho Sasaki Home Movie
Setsuo Aratani Home Movie
Soshiro Kiyama Home Movie
Japanese American Museum of San Jose
Japanese Cultural & Community Center of Northern California, Collection of Seizo Oka
Jim Nagareda
John Partipilo / The Tennessean
KPIX-TV
KRON TV
Library of Congress
Los Angeles Public Library/Herald-Examiner Collection
Lyndon B. Johnson Library
  Cecil Stoughton
  Yoichi Okamoto
Martha Heasely Cox Center for Steinbeck Studies
Maryknoll Mission Archives
Mineta Family
Alan Miyatake, Toyo Miyatake Studio
Museum of History and Industry
  PEMCO Webster & Stevens Collection, 1983.10.7394
  Seattle Post-Intelligencer Collection, pi28084
National Archives and Records Administration
Nikkei for Civil Rights & Redress (formerly Natl. Coalition for Redress/Reparations)
National Museum of American History
New York Daily News
Obata Family
Pacific Citizen
Panama Pacific Line, Prelinger Archive
Pasadena Museum of History, Archives
Periscope Films
Stan Praisewater
"REDRESS: THE JACL CAMPAIGN FOR JUSTICE" ©1994 A JACL Production, Directed by John Esaki
Ronald Reagan Library
San Francisco Chronicle / Polaris
San Francisco History Ctr., San Francisco Public Library
San Jose High School
San Jose State University Special Collections & Archives
Seabrook Educational and Cultural Center
Shutterstock
Sourisseau Academy for State and Local History, San Jose State University
  Arnold Del Carlo
Kevin Stillman/TxDOT
STR New / Reuters Pictures
Tazuma Family Collection
The Fresno Bee
The Mercury News
The New York Times Company
The Oregonian
The Seattle Star
The Seattle Times
Timothy Hughes Rare & Early Newspapers
Tule Lake Committee, Photo: WRA, Robert Ross
UCLA Library Special Collections, Charles E. Young Research Library
   Los Angeles Daily News Negatives (Collection 1387)
U.S. Army
U.S. Department of State, Office of the Historian
U.S. House of Representatives
U.S. Senate Historical Office
U.S.-Japan Council
University Library, University of California Santa Cruz
   Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary
University of Washington Libraries
   Special Collections, Hester 10414
Visual Communications
White House Photograph
William J. Clinton Presidential Library
Tsuya Hohri Yee and Corky Lee

LEGAL COUNSEL
Don Tamaki, Minami Tamaki LLP
Documentary Film Legal Clinic of the UCLA School of Law

FISCAL SPONSOR
Media Bridges, Inc.

FILMED ON LOCATION
Go For Broke Natl. Education Center
Hogan Lovells
JAMsj
LUXE Sunset Boulevard Hotel
Mineta San Jose International Airport
Mineta Transportation Institute
National Japanese American Historical Society
San Jose State University

SPECIAL THANKS
Wendy Abe
Suzanne Basalla
Nancy Biery
Mary Bitterman
Ann Burroughs
Christine Chen
E. Samantha Cheng
Jaime Cohen
Darryl Compton
Jim Copeland
Paige Cottingham-Streater
John Esaki
Eric K. Federing AM
Abraham Ferrer
Michael Fox, Sr.
Les Francis
Hideki Hamamoto
Clement Hanami
Carole Hayashino
Jamie Henricks
Tom Iino
Irene Hirano Inouye
Alvah Holmes
Joyce Iwasaki
Yuko Kaifu
William Kaneko
Carol Kawase
Vanessa Kang
Peggy Klappenberger
Elaine Ikoma Ko
Daphne Kwok
Ginger Lew
Kathy Masaoka
Greg Marutani
Warren Maruyama
Dan Mayeda
David Mineta
Robert Miyamoto
Floyd Mori
Kimi Murakami
Susan Muranishi
Stephen Nagano
Jim Nagareda
Gerry Nakano
Hillary Nakano
Max Nihei
Dan Okimoto
Taki Oshima
Chelsea Paige
Karen Philbrick
PilieroMazza, PLLC
Josh Schneiderman
John Tobe
Maeley Tom
Fumio Tsuda
Yoshihiro Uchida
Patty Wada
Martha Watanabe
Don Wyse
gayle k. yamada
Jan Yanehiro
Susan Yokoyama
Bill Yoshino
Don Young

EDUCATION CURRICULUM
Stanford Program on International and Cross-Cultural Education (SPICE)
Gary Mukai
Rylan Sekiguchi